The NJWA Summer Workshop invites all young artists entering grades 6-9 in Sept. 2017 to participate in this exciting three week intensive program designed to incorporate a variety of two and three dimensional materials and processes. The program will allow artists to incorporate their individual creative voices and improve technical skills while integrating personally meaningful concepts into their work. As the artists move through the program, they will be guided by our certified art educator Susan Ferretti, who is returning to the helm of our Art Intensive Program for a third consecutive year. Mrs. Ferretti brings an educational philosophy that promotes personal expression and refined technique, evident in the quality of her students' work.

The Emerging Artists program is divided into three weeks, each of which will focus on a specific concept and process. The concepts and methods examined will allow our young artists to make individual choices at every step of the process as they work to develop greater creative independence and a style that is uniquely their own. At the conclusion of each week, artists will have completed a finished artwork that reflects an enjoyable and rigorous experience. During the final week of the program, students will have the chance to further enhance their creative experience as they travel to the Museum of Modern Art (MOMA) in New York City.
